ANAHEIM CEMETERY

When Anaheim was settled by a German colony in 1859, there were only two other cemeteries in the area: Yorba Cemetery and Mission San Juan Capistrano. These were supported by the early Spanish settlers and contained mostly Catholic burials. Until the Anaheim Cemetery was acquired, it was not uncommon for someone to be buried in an empty lot or for a body to be shipped to Los Angeles or San Francisco for interment.

The Anaheim Cemetery had its first burial in 1867, that of an infant child of August and Petra Ontiveros Langenberger. Six of the seven original trustees of the Cemetery Association, all gentlemen born in Germany who were business leaders in the community, were buried there also.

Originally the cemetery contained five acres, but in 1893 fifteen more acres were purchased, and the boundaries have changed little since then. The site is at 1400 East Sycamore Street and bounded by East Street and State College Boulevard. Responsibility for administration of the cemetery today belongs to the Orange County Cemetery District No. 2 and the Orange County Board of Supervisors.

A cemetery is a history of people. It is a place to honor our dead and to make the memory of their lives a permanent record. Historians and descendants can learn much from cemetery records and tombstones.

The records in this volume are taken from the original Anaheim Cemetery books, handwritten, and now on microfilm in the Anaheim Public Library at 500 West Broadway, Anaheim. Some of them record not only the name and vital statistics of the deceased but also the person's color, marital status, place of birth, occupation and cause of death. The burial records in the Anaheim Cemetery tell us much about early Anaheim, its people and the times in which they lived.

We are indebted to the members of the Orange County California Genealogical Society for their efforts in reproducing this useful information and in reminding us of a part of our California history.

The Anaheim Cemetery Association was organized in 1866 as District No. 2. It includes the following school districts: Anaheim, Loara, Katella, Magnolia, and part of Orangethorpe. The present address is 1400 E. Sycamore, Anaheim, California, 92805.

The abbreviation Ch P stands for Chain Plot and FL means Family Lot.

The film strip was copied just as it was written which included the original spelling and the lack of commas. There was difficulty in distinguishing some of the letters, for instance, the capitals I and J looked the same. Sometimes the sur-name was first, sometimes it was last. No explanation was given for the checks and circles on the first 729 numbers. The index was also difficult to follow. It was made for all 3 film strips, so page 50, for example, could be in several books. By re-checking with the paper that had been copied, the names which should be included in this section were found. I sincerely hope that many will use this information which has been made more readily accessible to the public.
